Cocktails from the Start

Negroni 10

Started in a little café in Florence Casoni around 1919, Count Camilo Negroni concocted the cocktail by asking the bartender to strengthen a traditional Americano by adding gin rather than the normal soda water. This drink is an aperitif and the perfect way to start you night.

Ironroot Drought Gin, Sweet Vermouth, Campari

Sidecar 12

Dating back to 1922, this oldie but goodie is directly named after the passenger motorcycle attachment. While the exact origin is unclear, its roots start around the end of WWI in either London or Paris.

Hennessy VSOP, Triple Sec, Lemon Juice, Orange Peel

Old Fashioned 11

First developed in the 1880's, the Old Fashioned became such a standard drink that the glass it was served in became known as an "old-fashioned" glass. This cocktail has remained true to its roots even through prohibition and is a "must-drink" for every cocktail aficionado.

Old Forester Bourbon, Bitters, Sugar Cube, Orange Slice, Port Cherry

Sazerac 11

Receiving its name from the Sazerac de Forge et Fils brand of cognac, this cocktail is arguably the oldest "cocktail" around. It was born in New Orleans and showcases a blend of flavors as unique as its birth place.

Sazerac Rye, Lucid Absinthe, Sugar Cube, Bitters, Lemon Twist

Gibson 10

While the origin of this drink is unclear, one story of its birth centers around an investment banker name Gibson. Gibson took his clients out for "three-martini business lunches," but secretly asked the bartender to serve him only chilled water so that he could remain sober while his client became inebriated. The cocktail-onion garnish served as a sign to distinguish his beverage from the real martini intended for his clients.

Dripping Springs Artisan Gin, Dry Vermouth, Cocktail Onion
